

Surviving Transition

Understand our changing energy landscape

The service

This interactive session brings your team up to date with the latest peak oil, climate change and economic facts.

We begin to explore the likely impacts and opportunities for you, your organisation and your sector.

An introduction to the Transition Approach is provided, then we identify priority areas for further exploration and start to outline a high level action plan.

The delivery

Two of our practitioners will deliver this highly interactive session over 2 hours at your premises.

Transition Training and Consulting

The benefits

You will understand the current situation regarding the twin challenges of peak oil and climate change, and begin to assess the potential implications for your own organisation and the individuals within it.

You will be introduced to new and innovative ways of engaging your whole workforce to find the most viable responses.

Who is this for?

Initially, this session is most relevant for your senior management team.

The service can then be tailored for use as an awareness-raising tool and a 'call to action' throughout your organisation.
