

Transition for Local Authorities

The service

With your officers and members, this workshop explores the potential benefits of Transition to your local authority. It introduces the Transition Approach, and shows you how to best work with the Transition Initiatives already in your area.

It provides you with an overview of the enormously successful Transition Towns model and practice, as well as an interactive introduction to some core transition processes and tools. These are of great use in reducing your authority's vulnerabilities to energy, resource and economic constraints.

The delivery

Typically, two of our practitioners will spend half a day to deliver the workshop. Often we deliver 2 sessions in 1 day to enable maximum participation.

The benefits

This service identifies ways in which you can work with Transition Initiatives in your area to better deliver your services, be more cost effective and foster a truly vibrant community engagement model.

In addition, we provide invaluable information about a new framework for an enhanced risk assessment procedure in all areas of council business, ranging from strategic planning and transport infrastructure to food and emergency planning.

Who is this for?

The information and processes that this service provides are vital for assessing the assumptions that underpin your strategic plans. Energy prices and availability potentially affect every aspect of your organisation so this is a valuable tool for all your decision makers and partners.
